

INTERWORLD

by CHERNIKOVA

One restaurant. Two worlds. No known direct comparable format.
Architecture as emotional transition.

INTERWORLD is a two-level lakeside dining experience built into the natural bank of a lake. An open terrace above the waterline gives way, through a calibrated 22-metre enclosed descent, to a subterranean dining room where a single fireplace faces a wall of glass revealing the lake itself. The transition between the two is not a corridor — it is the product, calibrated in both directions: The Descent into stillness, The Ascent back to the open night sky.
